

The Leaking Truth

39th Post - Taking a bite out of a Crime!

March 24, 2025

Part of this blog and writing it is to expose a larger problem faced here that might not be as transparent to see firsthand but my goal is to chip away at the larger criminal aspect of my findings and expose the truth behind what's really going on. One of the things I have noted about is I have found traces of JavaScript mining happening within the browser! I found a .js file label "cryptomining" with the web developer settings turned on, now I can read but I'm not fluent in any specific language of programming haha I actually failed at writing a JavaScript app for a mortgage calculator and kept getting "NaN" as my result (didn't help the college was teaching it in Notepad basically)! This is something to keep eyes on that's for sure, in due time it will become more clear as more people stay vigilant online. Greed is a powerful thing and can drive people to do crazy things to make more money, really it's just stupid and dumb when you look at the big picture of life. Someone out there someday will find a way to look at the ledgers for a coin and connect the dots to something else eventually someday...

IPV6 wallet trades are something I uncovered one day by chance, I found Ethereum being sent to a wallet is in the .ru space on Google, what was the story behind that trade that I found? Something more sinister is probably the answer to my question. Now I'm no expert in the cyber space of math money as I like to call it but using an IPV6 wallet address seems a little 'insecure' but that's just me looking at it not knowing the full scope of how this works but I'm sure someone else out there will know more than I! Your welcome if your a security expert and are now just learning about this practice!

My digging into TruePeopleSearch.com revealed some interesting information, I found a name of a person of interest Laura L Yanasuka (I believe I spelt that correctly) but the information has since been scrubbed from the site interestingly enough haha what are they hiding here? Why did they go through the efforts to cover it up? I wouldn't name drop unless it came up on various names over and over and over again and I kept asking myself WHY?! I mean she must get around the country quite a bit I would assume because I saved the addresses of a person I was following online for a bit and that information all by itself is a trove of mystery surrounding it.. Ever since my neighbor Jerome was murdered, I have been digging online uncovering information surrounding his property and did find some leads I sent the FBI to look into... BTW you can remove yourself and your data from TruePeopleSearch.com and it's not very hard to do, so I'll share that info with you as well!!! Your welcome!!!

Another aspect of crime I have uncovered is the 'echo' which holds this whole shit show together, they use this tool often and frequently to cover their tracks up in various ways here. I don't know a whole lot of how it works but I do know exposing the echo when it happens should be a top priority here! If I can expose the echo and how its effecting the timeline people will see the truth here once and for all! My goal is to get rid of their ability to cover up their tracks using the said echo tool and hopefully someone can figure out what they tried to change and cover up specifically! SO we learned recently that if telepathy is sent over a long amount of distance they can "capture" the ECHO from that speech being sent and use that somehow to manipulate time via a wormhole or something like that.. It's not clear exactly how the Echo fully works but having any form of conversation that lasts over 15min is all it takes to really mess things up for the person on the other end.. Tread wisely if your finding a way to reach out here to me, beware of the echo! Just foof for thought if you were to input binary code into the telepathy you could CAPTURE the echo transmission and hijack the source it's being sent too! Sending commands over telepathy especially if you know about the 15min rule could change everything and allow a total takeover of the system that works here! That would be wonderful news to my ears if someone can break the echo!!! Nand would be very interested in doing this haha!

Thought of the night... What if you have to take two steps backwards in order to take a leap forward? I say this because if someone out there is paying attention they would be doing their very best to record as much data as possible to make that leap forward, one day it'll make sense more clearly and you might thank me for that nugget of truth but until then tread wisely...

I am also aware the world does not revolve around my blog, duh. My audience seems to be rather small but I do hope the readers take away something positive when visiting my page for as I say the truth always comes out... My goal is to hopefully start the discussion around a topic posted, that's it, information comes from various sources am I right?! Freedom of speech and press right?!
